CHANGES = IMPROVEMENT?

Time was - and not so long ago - that the Beardie was not as one sees today. The breed has not really changed, but fad and fashion have changed what wins in shows. Time was - not so long ago - the dogs had far less eye hair; in fact, Beardies had relatively smooth hair surrounding the eyes thus could see easily. Time was - not so long ago - the dogs' forelock hair would arch forward to protect the eyes, yet be high enough and thin enough to see through. Time was - and not so long ago - the coat fitted the dog and was only long and heavy enough to protect the dog. Time was - not so long ago - the dogs floated around the ring with their lightweight bodies and legs.

The "modern" Beardie rarely has any of these qualities. Each contributed to the Beardies' ability to work in any terrain and on any stock at any time of year. If you really want to do Herding, remember that a 10 minute run in a Trial is NOT a full day in the pasture; even when Trials are one's only real option, could your dog hold up day after day doing the work a Beardie is meant to do?

It may be a rarity for any Beardie to work regularly and all day, yet it was just this dog that our breed Standard describes.
