HERDING REPORT AND NOTICES

Elsa Sell • beaconbb@bellsouth.net

There are no new AKC or AHBA herding titles the last couple of months.

March 15 is the deadline for member nominations for herding judges at the 2016 National Specialty Herding Trial. Only two people have taken the time to send in nominations. Surely there are many others of the herding community who want to provide input! Send this info to me at beaconbb@bellsouth.net – judge name, why you recommend the judge, your highest herding title.

As always, if you have recently finished a herding title with your Bearded Collie you are invited to send me several paragraphs about your pathway to the title and a photo for future publication in a herding article.

HAIR OF THE DOG

by Maryann Szalka, BCCA Health Chair

The dog needs a bath, it's after 6 p.m. on a weekday, and you don't have any dog shampoo on hand. Let's concede that shampoo made for people will clean your dog, but the question is, is it good for your dog?

A highly important component of skin is what is called the acid mantle. This is a lightly acidic layer that covers the skin, serving as a barrier to protect the porous topmost layer of the skin, the stratum corneum, from environmental contaminants such as bacteria and viruses. The stratum corneum is responsible for keeping the outer body well hydrated, by absorbing water and not allowing excessive evaporation to occur. When we bathe, using soaps and shampoos, we wash away this layer of acidic oil. This is why most human shampoos and soaps are formulated with moisturizers to replace the protective layer that has been scrubbed away, at least until the skin is able to replenish itself around 12 hours later. If the stratum corneum is left stripped and unprotected, it is open to a host of microorganisms, which may present as dry, flaky skin, irritated, peeling skin, or as a rash of itchy bumps.

The acid mantle can also be defined as the relative pH balance of the skin. The pH scale ranges from 0 to 14, with levels less than 6.4 considered high acidity, and levels more than 6.4 considered high alkalinity. The normal range of skin pH levels for humans is 5.2 to 6.2, which means it tends to be on the acidic side, and shampoos and skin products are formulated specifically to maintain this balance.

Now consider the relative pH balance for dogs. Depending on breed, gender, climate, and the anatomical size on the dog, the pH levels range from 5.5 to 7.5, tending toward a more alkaline concentration. Therefore, if a shampoo that is formulated for human skin is used on a dog, the dog's acid mantle will be disrupted, creating an environment where bacteria, parasites, and viruses can run rampant. Unknowingly, many pet owners will repeat washings of their dogs because of the smell caused by a proliferation of bacteria, making the problem worse as the skin's acid mantle/pH level becomes more imbalanced. Additionally, if the shampoo makes the skin feel dry, your dog will scratch at its skin, creating abrasions for bacteria to invade. It quickly becomes a vicious cycle.

Just as you would look for a shampoo that helps maintain the pH balance of your own scalp, you should also concentrate on finding a shampoo with a pH balance that is specifically balanced for a dog's skin. Dog shampoos should be in the neutral range, around 7. Many shampoo manufacturers will include the pH level on the label, but at the very least, they will clearly state that the shampoo is pH-balanced for dogs.

Do read the labels, making sure that there are no artificial fragrances or colors added to the shampoo. Look for natural skin moisturizers like vitamin E, aloe vera, honey, and tea tree oil. Fragrances to look for should be natural; chamomile, lavender, eucalyptus, and citrus are some examples of clean, pleasant fragrances, some of which also do double duty as insect repellents. If you can find organic or a natural dog shampoo even better, but don't rely on the front label alone. Again, read the ingredients list.

This is for the conformation people. Yes, I know Bearded Collies are shown naturally. But let's say the exhibitor next to you is using hair spray, corn starch, dye, mousse, gel, talc, or the latest grooming gimmick and it goes airborne and lands in your dog's coat. Be sure to wash it out when you get home since these items can build up on the coat, and alter the pH of your dog's skin.

MEMORIAL COMMITTEE

Carol Bond

As most of you are aware the original nine Memorial Plaques were decommissioned last year. The individual name plates have been removed and are available to be claimed by the owner of the dog named on each plate. All of the dogs who were memorialized on the Memorial Plaques are listed on the BCCA Website. You can find out if your dog is listed on this page: <http://beardedcolliclub.us/memorial>

Many of you have already claimed the plates for dogs owned or bred by your kennel. However there are still many plates that have not been claimed. Please look through the lists on the website, and let me know if you would like to have your plate mailed to you. These plates would make a beautiful name plate attached to a photo frame of the dog.

The Memorial Committee continues to honor any Bearded Collie who has travelled to the Rainbow Bridge. Your donation is utilized by the BCCA Rescue committee to help beardies in need. Please consider a donation in memory of your beloved dog; the dog's name will appear on the BCCA website for everyone to view.

Thank you, and may all the memories you have of your beloved friend bring you a smile every day.
