

OBEDIENCE AND RALLY AT THE 2016 NATIONAL SPECIALTY

Elizabeth Hayes, Obedience & Rally Chair, 2016 BCCA National

For the first time in several years or more, obedience and rally had their own day. Another first was having an obedience brace class with an entry. There were 33 Beardies entered in Obedience and 55 Beardies entered in Rally. The judges were Elizabeth (Tibby) Chase for Obedience and Denise LaCroix for Rally.

Kim Rickards kept Beadie owners at home abreast of what was happening in the obedience ring by posting photos on the specialty Facebook page of the various classes. Steve Finney and his two Beardies captivated the audience in the Obedience Brace class by their performance.

The first place winners in Obedience were

The 2016 BCCA Herding Awards (Bishop, Top Herding Dog, Herding Dog of the Year) and Herding ROM's will be calculated early next year. These are based on title and qualifying run reports from AKC and instinct tests (mostly from BCCA instinct testing). It is current through approximately late October. The remainder of the year's results will come in January.

You are invited to double check your dog's information in the herding database for accuracy.

But are things going as well as you had hoped? Not for me. After 4 months off to deal with shingles in the arm (both muscle and nerves affected), I was happy to take Heidi up for lessons on both sheep and ducks in November. While working ducks one day, I said to Doyle that I often was reminded in farm work how similar ducks and cattle responded – but that while I could manage well by myself (no dog) with cattle and get one or a group to go where I wanted if I was patient and quiet, that skill didn't carry over to being with a dog and ducks. I say stop – dog keeps on with her own agenda.

Hmmm – we talked about why. There are the stock – ducks who can see just about 360 – they don't miss a thing. Then there is the dog, who is wound-up just seeing a duck, to say nothing of a moving duck with feet on or off the ground. There is the handler who in turn, upon seeing wound-up dog, behaves likewise. Now what does the dog do when already wound up by the stock and then exposed to the also wound up handler who adds a babbling frenzy of sound? Yep. Dog takes a msec to become unaware of the handler – and there we are with a problem to solve. Intellectually I grasp the solutions after all the issues are pointed out – functionally, it is a work in progress. Handler needs to tone it down a whole lot – be quiet in action and sound, be in the correct place at the correct time. Dog needs help (off stock) to learn to be aware of handler and commands so that with stock she can retain handler awareness while visually focused on the stock. Awareness ≠ Attention. Think about how you help your Beardie learn and retain this handler awareness. Send me your stories about training and trialing, along with photos for future issues of the Bagpipes or Bulletin.

- Herding at RottiEwe Farm on sheep and ducks
- Fundraising items such as personalized crate tags (required by Purina on all crates), a crate cover, and more available for gift giving on our Fundraising web page
- The launch of our first raffle celebrating the season and sheep of all things! We plan to launch a new raffle every 6 weeks, so keep returning to our web page to see if this is the item for you
- A new approach to our Auction and Awards Night
- Additional performance events such as herding instinct testing, an obedience C match, and, through a collaboration with the Lexington Barn Hunt Club, a barn hunt trial on the weekend of October 7 and 8, 2017

As you can imagine, like all in life, the Specialty is dependent on the generosity of our members whether you plan to attend or not. Donations to the trophy fund, sponsoring the Specialty, and purchasing logo wear and fundraising items all contribute to our success. We hope that in this season of giving, you can include gifting your Specialty with financial support. It goes without saying-we look forward to seeing you "At the Farm".

Happy New Year from the BCCA 2017 National Specialty Committee!
