

after a cat—so I know he's up to his old self! He will stay on the ketoconazole for another month or two, I think, and then it's just relapses we have to worry about. The University of Georgia was very discouraging about relapses, but I was referred to someone at the University of Tennessee who was more encouraging and said about a 20% relapse rate. Then, too, some of those statistics were when the drugs were used separately and now they give them together—so who knows?
