ELIGIBLE FOR 2021 RALLY NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIPS

The following report acknowledges 17 beardies that are eligible to enter the AKC Rally® National Championship being held July 9, 2021 in Wilmington, Ohio. During the qualifying period, dogs must have earned a title with at least three scores of 93 or higher for the class they are eligible to compete in. Eligibility criteria is more extensive for dogs that qualify for the championship class. We had qualifying beardies in all classes. Congratulations to all these beardies and their owners!!!

NOMINATIONS FOR 2022 NATIONAL SPECIALTY HERDING TRIAL JUDGES

Members are invited to nominate judges for the specialty trial. Send your nominations to me. Include your highest herding title along with judge(s) name (s) and reasons you recommend the individual(s). The deadline is March 15. After BCCA herding committee review, the list is sent to the specialty herding trial chair around March 30. A prospective judge's state of residence is not a consideration.

BCCA 2020 HERDING AWARDS

As with other venues, opportunity to trial and participation was very limited because of COVID19, with fewer awards for the year. To those who were able to compete, congratulations! If a dog received more than one award, its complete list of titles is given only the first time.

TOP HERDING DOG (THD)

Average of three scores to obtain title for each level course and stock (started intermediate advanced) except for Masters. Masters - average of first eight scores in a level/course/stock after regular title in that class; owners must submit documentation to AKC. Championship THD is determined by average of highest three scores with championship points.

HERDING DOG OF THE YEAR (HDOTY)

Title obtained in the year; average of three highest point count added to average of three scores associated with highest point counts - for levels (started, intermediate and advanced) course and stock. In advanced when the title was achieved prior to the award year; then the qualifying runs must be in the award year. Otherwise points/scores apply regardless of year obtained.

Dogs are arranged in order of placement in THD.

THE ELUSIVE SHED: THE ART OF COMMUNICATION, PART II

By Pat Taylor

(Reprinted from AHBA Oct-Dec 2020 Events Bulletin with Pat Taylor's permission)

When I extract myself from the equation it changes the picture a little for the dog BUT it doesn't change the exercise, other than I'm now off to one side and out of the picture for the dog to orient to. I still want the dog to create the hole, but now I want the dog to Walk-Into the sheep to split them without me being there. It is easier to do this when driving the sheep away from you down the fence line, so plan on trying to do your split/shed at this point with the sheep moving away from you. The reason it is easier with the sheep moving away from you is that you are going to split/shed the sheep and bring the group closest to you back to you (fetch them.) This allows the dog to reorient the shed toward you and gives him a clearer picture. You'll see why as I continue to explain.

Next, I'll position myself at the edge of the group or even down the fence line at a distance instead of the midpoint. I'll then drive the stock up and down the fence line and past me, doing multiple holds and using my square flanks to position the dog. Driving the stock past me takes me out of the picture for the dog because he is no longer orienting to me. I will use this driving time to make sure the dog is doing square flanks and board straight Walk-Ups. I'll do multiple stops and holds in both directions while driving.

Practice stringing the sheep out on the fence line while driving where they are not tightly bunched together. You'll want to string them out in a line before attempting to shed them.

I realize that some dogs are awesome at driving. These dogs will naturally reset their Line so that they are not walking into the sheep but paralleling them while driving, naturally holding them on the fence while driving. Be that as it may, we are going to mess with your dog's head a little. When I'm fixing to shed I say There, the dog needs to reorient to the stock and walk toward the fence, effectively pushing the heads of the sheep away and turning half the group around to change direction and leaving the other half to drive toward me. This is where the Walk-In command may be helpful to explain to the dog exactly what you are doing and what you are expecting. If you are only using a Walk-Up command, you can tweak the dog by calling a very short flank if you need the dog to get deeper into the group. Most likely, you will have to Mark his behavior because he'll try to flank out off the stock to regroup them all. You cannot allow that since you are trying to split them. So, I'm going to tell my dog to Walk-Up. If he's driving and not walking straight into the fence, I'll try to flank him over toward the fence and redirect with another Walk-Up. I'm "using my words" to help explain to the dog what I want. Remember that. Most sheep will split when the dog encroaches on them just a little bit. You walk the dog In and then stop him and the sheep behind him will stop while the sheep in front of him will come toward me. I am the draw. I may, again, need to do a short Flank to get the dog deeper behind the stock or closer to the fence line to keep sheep from the other group from bleeding back into my group. If you've done your job right the dog will turn loose of the group that is behind him (you've marked that group with a "No") and simply drive his group of sheep directly to you (you marked this group with a "Yes").

This exercise is done s-l-o-w-l-y. You walk the dog In a step at a time until the hole is created and there is a clear path to the fence. Then you reposition the dog to fetch/drive the sheep to you. When this can be done repeatedly with total success, you will walk to the other side of the sheep and do exactly the same exercise from the other direction. The dog is still Fetching/Driving the stock to you, but it is a different direction for the drive for the dog.

It is now time for me to start moving to different locations, BUT I will do the split/shed in the same location on the fence line, (e.g., the sheep are on the east fence in the arena and I'll move to the west fence, BUT the sheep will REMAIN on the east side of the arena). This is so that the picture remains the same for the dog AND the sheep. The only difference is that I'm not there.

I'm somewhere else.

I have yet to find a dog that doesn't love Shedding as it is done above. It is a power trip for the dog. Once the dog understands what is expected they will love shedding sheep along a fence line then putting them back together again and then doing it again... and again and again and again...

Once the dog readily sheds the sheep this way, I'll re-shed the same group multiple times until I'm down to just a couple of sheep for the dog to fetch/drive a few feet. This is when it gets HARD for the dog. Those sheep will want to go BACK to the main group. It is YOUR job to position the dog for success and to keep the sheep separated. It's a game. Enjoy it!

Now, you are ready to move the stock to the middle of the arena and shed there. Almost the exact same scenario as above. You are now back with the sheep and I want you to AGAIN remember to string the sheep out in a line BEFORE attempting to shed. Don't fetch the sheep to you and hold them in a clump at your feet. A dog doesn't shed butts. It sheds heads. After the dog brings you the sheep move to about midpoint in the sheep with the dog on the opposite side of the sheep. Don't be in a hurry. Take your time. You are NOT calling the dog through but walking the dog In. You do NOT have to stand still but should be fluid in your own movements. You should walk back and forth on your side of the sheep helping the dog string them out and flanking the dog and stopping the dog at varying points attempting to stop the dog about midpoint. You are attempting to stop the dog where it will split the sheep when he walks in to make the hole. The visual you should see is the sheep slowly spreading out, making space between them while you are on one side and the dog is being flanked back and forth on the other side depending on the need.

One thing I see in watching people try to shed is they do NOT hold their side. This is a team effort. Do YOUR job too. Get down and hold your side. You are now effectively the fence, I'll walk back and forth on my side and use flanks and short drives to get the sheep strung out. Then, I'll help by getting down and holding my side while telling the dog to Walk-In at a point where I believe the shed will occur or where a hole has formed. I continually help the dog by marking behavior to guide his actions. In a perfect world the sheep are light enough to shed easily. The dog will flank to a point where some of the sheep will stop while others will move on and you simply Walk the dog In and drive the stock you want. Shed done. Now tell me, WHEN does that really occur?

Take that large group and shed them. Then take the group you've driven off and shed that group. Keep shedding those sheep until you have only two left and have successfully driven them away from the rest of the group. Then regroup and start over. HOLD YOUR SIDE. You're not holding all the sheep, just part of the sheep to help the dog do the Shed. Use your body and stock stick to help you accomplish this. When you are proactive this way your dog needs to be responding to verbal commands. Get him used to you moving around and swinging the stock stick. You don't want the dog cowering or responding to your swinging the crook. It all happens at the same time. I may be walking along with the sheep (I'm midpoint) while the dog is flanking back and forth on the other side of the sheep. Then I'll say There and ask him to Walk-In. You never know when that hole will form. Be prepared to call the Walk-In.

I cannot repeat this enough... The dog needs to understand that he'll have to allow some of the sheep to leave while holding the rest. MARK HIS BEHAVIOR to help him understand which sheep you want him to allow to leave. When he LOOKS at the sheep you want him to allow to leave MARK IT with a "No". Then when he looks back at the sheep you want to shed/drive away, MARK IT with a "Yes". HELP THE DOG understand what the game is!!!!

The key to Shedding is that most of the sheep should be facing the same direction and NOT have their heads turned toward the handler. Again, a dog does NOT shed butts. It sheds heads. Move the dog and sheep around until they are all facing a direction then work to create a hole both by holding your side (you're holding only part of the sheep) and asking the dog to Walk-In WHILE you are holding your side. Be fluid in your shed. I may decide to face either direction depending on how the sheep are working. The dog and I may change sides several times. It just depends on what is happening. I may have the dog drive the sheep past me then flank him up to be midpoint to create a hole on a Walk-In. I may not be doing anything but getting out of my dog's way. But be fluid in your mindset. Whatever is needed.

I hear complaints about shedding heavy sheep. Well, if the sheep are heavy to the handler you may wish to consider taking the handler out of the equation. Drive the sheep past you and step back away from the sheep. Then flank the dog to midpoint and LET the back sheep come back to you while the dog steps in between and holds the other sheep off. Think in fluid terms. I've seen heavy sheep become light when the handler is removed from the equation.

My personal complaint is that I have an upright loose-eyed dog and am unable to get him close enough to the sheep to facilitate a shed. I've had to be fluid in my thinking from creating the shed myself to flanking and working my dog at a distance and when the sheep split flanking him through from a distance. Whatever it takes.

Because I am not asking the dog to completely turn loose of the sheep (using a Walk Up/Walk-In vs a Recall), the dog is MUCH HAPPIER with the exercise. I am allowing the dog to continue to work. He just has to do it my way!

On head hunting Border Collies this method seriously reduces the head hunting. The dog understands to quit trying to put the group back together and let some of the sheep leave PLUS the dog is still in contact with the group you wish to drive and the dog is happy to oblige because he is allowed to work instead of having to completely turn loose of all the sheep to get a split. It just makes sense to the dog.

Trips and me after a successful run and steal.

My forte is upright loose-eyed dogs, though I've trained my share of eye breeds. These dogs need more training to be able to compete with the eye breeds, but it can be done. Training the Shed as discussed above helps equalize the playing field. But it takes time and training. Your choice, as I first said. The above is how I've modified my training to be more competitive. Happy shedding and much success to you.

BEACON NEWS

Elsa Sell • beaconbb@bellsouth.net

The yearly update period for open health registry dogs is ongoing for several more weeks. This year BeaCon is offering a prize for new registry entries. The winner will be selected randomly from among the first 100 new dog entries. The prize will be a Jo Warren painting of the winner's Beardie - a treasure for sure (see an example below). If you're interested in entering your Beardie in the registry, go to: <https://www.beaconforhealth.org/sqlweb> to register and get started.

Dr. Oberbauer's lab has completed Grant # 02488 - Addison's Disease and Symmetrical Lupoid Onychodystrophy in Bearded Collies Provide Common Ground for Identifying Susceptibility Loci Underlying Canine Autoimmune Disorders. BeaCon thanks everyone who has participated by providing samples for the research.

Three publications have resulted, the most recent being "Genetic characterization of Addison's disease in Bearded Collies" by Gershony, et.al. The article is available at: <https://bmcgenomics.biomedcentral.com/articles/10.1186/s12864-020-07243-0>

Conclusions: "Our findings support the polygenic and complex nature of canine AD and identified a strongly associated locus on CFA (canine chromosome)18 that, when combined with three other smaller effect loci, was predictive of disease. The results offer progress in the identification of susceptibility loci for canine AD in the Bearded Collie. Further studies are needed to confirm association with the suggested candidate genes and identify actual causative mutations involved with AD susceptibility in this breed."

The mission of the Bearded Collie Club of America is to protect the long-term welfare of the breed by providing a variety of opportunities for Beardie owners, breeders, and the general public to learn, connect, and compete, while supporting research into breed-specific health issues and rescuing Beardies in need.

UPDATES ON THE 2020 BCCA NATIONAL SPECIALTY

Each month, I plan to update the membership on news from the Purina Event Center, so that everyone has the most recent information to determine what the scenario might be for the 2020 BCCA National Specialty.

Purina Farms and Event Center are a subsidiary of the Nestle Purina corporation. The corporate office, headquartered in St. Louis, drives any and all policy decisions that impact Purina, including COVID-19 restrictions and protocols.

We have been in close contact with Purina staff for monthly updates regarding COVID-19 and its impact on dog shows held at Purina Farms.

In December 2020 the facilities manager wrote, “We are planning to host events inside and outside at Purina Farms in 2021 but with limited capacity. Our current capacity thresholds remain at 50 people inside the facility and 150 people in our outdoor event areas. We are not sure if this will be the case moving into the new year . . .”

Through a more recent January communication, we learned, “We are supposed to meet to discuss relaxing COVID-19 protocols at the end of February, so we are going to be able to communicate further information in March.”

So what does this all mean for you? It means that, as always, the decision to attend the National Specialty is totally up to the individual; personal schedules, travel and hotel costs, and who is judging influences those decisions. The 2020 BCCA National Specialty has the added burden of safety issues associated with COVID-19. But we are up to the challenge!

Here is how we are planning to address these challenges, if the current COVID-19 protocols remain in place at Purina.

Purina Farms COVID-19 Protocols	2020 BCCA National Specialty Response
Limit of 50 people indoors and out with Purina staff designated entry and exits	Herding is off-site; agility indoors with check-in using AgilityGate app. All other competitions indoors with a tented waiting area outdoors, with fans and classes announced. Grooming set up outdoors with access to outdoor bathing. Indoor grooming available from 4 - 10 pm daily with free sign up; pop-ups allowed. Dogs can be crated indoors from the heat. Premiums and the Master Registration will be sent out later, so we have the best information possible for participants to decide if they are going to attend. Our judge from Scotland is scheduled for his vaccination and booster this month.
Limit of 150 people on-site; must be registered	Currently three-days of conformation will be live-streamed; we are looking into adding agility and obedience/rally.
Temperature checks, parking in every other spot, social distancing, masks, hand washing, self-serve food, frequent cleaning by Purina staff.	The Welcome Bag will provide needed protective gear along with other functional and fun items; groups can sit together who have formed “a pod”; health seminar, Judges Ed, and pre-Auction items all on-line; Welcome Party outdoors off-site with Beardies present; Auction outdoors under a tented area, if indoors not available; vendors, LogoWear, Beardie Mercantile all outdoors, easily accessible.

If you are planning to attend the 2020 BCCA National Specialty, I would ask that you not make a decision until the premiums and the Master Registration Form come out. A lot can change in just a few months.

And, as people of a certain age, you know the story of Chicken Little and the cry of “The Sky is falling!” and how that message proved to be a false alarm.

In closing, if you are eager to get back into competitive events, believe your 2020 National Specialty committee has your best interest at heart, and more importantly, if you are willing to follow COVID-19 protocols and better yet, get your vaccinations, then as they say, “We are golden!”

In the meantime, if you want to talk directly with me, you can contact me at cas4beardies@earthlink.net so we can set up a phone call.

VERSATILITY NEWS

Joanne Williamson • balgrae@ixnetcom.com

The AKC New Titles report containing the titles earned in December, 2020 still hasn't arrived so the summary report for 2020 will have to wait. However, I have a couple of new versatility award winners to report based on the new scent work/barn hunt venue. One I found as a result of preparing a new Excel table containing all of the AKC titles earned back to 2004 and the other was one I had missed and was pointed out to me by the owner.

CH Highflying First Degree FDC BCAT RATN CGCA TKN, owned by Jerry and Robin Lord, earned a RATN in 2017 so with the creation of the new Scent committee, now has the required number of titles in three venues for a versatility award.

Artisan Mountain Snow PT FDC OJP NJP RATN CGCA CGCU TKN, owned by Darleen Ereaux, has completed a Versatility Excellent award.

Congratulations to these fine teams!
