TAYLOR MADE FOR ME!

Sonja Blanchard

When Quincy's first litter of puppies arrived on November 20th, 2014, I was excited and full of expectations about the road ahead for these lovely babies. They filled a long time goal to breed my first litter and create a cross that combined both brains and beauty. Joanne Williamson and I made the plan to breed to Jack adding more drive and speed crossed with Quincy's do it all, smart and happy personality.

Little did I know I would depend in the future, on my choice to possess other traits I had no idea I would need down the road. After great debate over which of the seven sweet babies would stay, I decided the naughty, sensitive little spitfire named Pie was the one for me. She was quite noise sensitive, she figured out how to scale the xenon at seven weeks, when she wasn't comfortable with the vacuum cleaner or blender running. She was also Quincy's favorite and Quinn would single her out to play and cuddle from the very beginning. So it was decided she would stay and she was named "Taylor Made in Vermont", Taylor for short. This was also a nod to the elderly dog loving lady down the road who we grew up with, our adopted grandmother, Evelyn Taylor.

Taylor proved to possess plenty of her dad's go. We were off to the races, learning to train a whole different kind of Beardie than I had had in my previous three. She is fast, incredibly independent and crazy driven by toys. The noise sensitivity is still a large part of our every day challenge to be managed but short of that she much resembles the energizer bunny even at her current age of seven. I had no idea the partnership this would create for me in the years ahead and that would be irreplaceable.

In 2016 I started falling down when I tried to do things like back up while herding or turning too fast in agility. I also started to feel like I was stuck in mud when I was trying to run. During this time these issues made it rough for me to compete in my beloved dog sports but I was determined to keep going. My whole life I have lived tough, fast and to the fullest. From my childhood up, I spent my time riding and showing horses, managing a gentleman's farm, climbing hills all day long and working extremely hard as well as showing and competing with the dogs. I broke my back in a riding accident and for half a decade the doctors used this as an excuse to write off looking for other issues. It took many years of decline in mobility, weakness, frustration with doctors and my own strong will to finally be diagnosed in 2020. We now know that I have a rare autoimmune disease, Inclusive Body Myositis (IBM), which is a form of muscular dystrophy.

During those years it was progressively harder to compete with Quincy, she is an in your pocket girl and wants you with her for every step. So slowly my husband took over showing her for the last couple years until her retirement. Taylor however took the challenge and ran with it. I learned to herd not going backwards and found a trainer that could help me to learn distance in agility. She loved it, the more distance I gave her the happier she was. Soon I couldn't run any more and Taylor allowed me to go to the center of the course and direct her from there in agility trials.

I had to give up working sheep as it was too dangerous for me, not being able to get out of the way, and Taylor had never been fond of ducks. The thinking out of the box insight of Molly Wisecarver, at a herding clinic I attended, helped me to find a way to use that toy Taylor loved so much to motivate her. If she gave me the response I wanted she got to play; before we knew it we were in advanced A ducks and striking a groove, as I could stay in the center. We were able to get through 2019 fall herding trials here in New England, where we won back to back majors even using a cane for support and balance. I was very hopeful that we would be able to finish our championship despite my decline.

Then COVID hit and canceled all the trials in our area for the next year, a big blow I did not need. In 2021 when the trials started back up I was in a new place with Taylor but shortly after had another set back by breaking both feet during a fall and having to begin using a walker. Once again Taylor learned to adjust and still allow me to play in agility and herding. Herding was a much bigger learning curve though, how to accomplish the course with a walker was difficult, especially working with ducks that had a mind of their own. Some of them would hide under the walker and some would just plain freak out. I could no longer open the gates, but judges have allowed me to have assistance and slowly Taylor and I figured out ways to make it around the course with this big hindrance.

It was hard to be competitive enough to win though. Our biggest issue was how to get the ducks out of the pen, we tried several methods, all resulting in not so great cross drives and mostly with half our ducks. I disappointingly went into the winter just 2 points short of our herding Championship. I feared by spring my dream would be over, but last month on May 7th I entered the ring again, still able to hobble with the walker to get around. I am pretty sure most would have given up but call me stubborn, I was beyond determined. Saturday I sent Taylor into the pen again to bring the ducks out, to try for the cross drive twice, much like the year before it resulted in a mess. Joanne said “She is just too stressed by this method”.

This prompted more conversation with peers and our judge on other ways to try. I have had so many individuals offer thoughts and encouragement over the last two years. It definitely showed me a different side of many and renewed my faith in humanity a bit. I truly was blessed to have them all, especially Joanne Williamson and my husband Eric, in my corner to help me through all of it. While I lay in bed early Sunday morning I thought to myself about the pen again, going over all the pen methods that had been tried, about the only way I hadn’t tried was to back my walker into the pen. It was risky, but maybe worth a try. In the walk through I went out and tried, I still wasn’t sure it would work but what did I have to loose. Low and behold it worked and all five ducks exited, Taylor and I nailed the cross drive. The crowd cheered and I cried again, this time with happiness, Taylor bounced out of the ring happier than I had seen her in years. One more point down. Then a second point in the afternoon to finish our goal. Dual Champion, Masters of Versatility, Balderdash Taylored in Vermont.

Taylor’s and my journey has obviously been far from smooth. I am sure I don’t need to tell you that there were plenty of tears of frustration over the last few years. I don’t write this article to gain your admiration or have your sorrow. I rather write it to tell you how incredibly honored I am to have my team mate Taylor. And to express how lucky we all are to love Bearded Collies so much and to encourage you to look on every day as an adventure you may not get to have again. Elsa asked me to write about the experience of working a Bearded Collie with my disability. I can honestly say there is no other breed I would have rather had to help me make it through the journey or to love me every day of our lives going forward. Bearded Collies get a bad rap sometimes for the bounce and the bark but it was that independent brassiness that made this relationship work, for her to help me, so we could continue competing years longer than I would have been able to otherwise. She truly was Taylor Made For ME!

THERAPY BEARDIES

Licking Loneliness

WHO WILL WIN THIS YEAR?

Andrew Award

Presented to the Bearded Collie that has performed the most service hours in therapy work during the previous year.

Avery Dudasch Award

Presented to any Bearded Collie that has performed pet therapy visiting ill children at a hospital during the previous year.

The Avery Award honors the memory of 11 year old Avery Dudasch, who showed great courage, hope, and faith in her battle with cancer.

Casey – The Wonder Dog Award

Recognizes any physically challenged or rescue Bearded Collie doing therapy work.

A "Casey" is in memory of Casey, who overcame his early life in a puppy mill and an injury that cost him a leg, to become a beloved therapy dog to thousands of people.
