FIX-N-GO/FEO

AKC now allows a practice called "Fix-N-Go" at its trials. It used to be that if your dog did something like break the stay at the start, miss a contact, knock a bar, or go off-course unexpectedly, you would be whistled off the course if you tried to repeat what you had done wrong. Now you are allowed to "train" these errors if you choose to. If you want to repeat a knocked bar, you have to put the bar back up yourself. You must leave the course at the SCT (Standard Course Time) and you receive an "E"/No Time for doing Fix-N-Go but it is an invaluable opportunity to work on training problems in the actual trial environment. You can also enter Time2Beat and FAST FEO or "For Exhibition Only". If you declare your run as "FEO", you can carry a toy in the ring and play with your dog in between obstacles as a reward. You are not allowed to use food or throw the toy. This can be a great experience for dogs that shut down at trials, making the trial situation more like training at home.

PRACTICING AT HOME:

STARTING DISTANCE WORK

Even if you can keep up with your beardedie on course, being able to have lateral distance from obstacles can be an advantage, allowing you to get into position to control complicated sequences in a more timely fashion than if you have to run right beside your partner. The foundation work for distance skills is easily done at home if you have a jump and a tunnel.

The discussion below assumes that you have some kind of stay command: you can leave your beardedie and he/she will stay in place until you release them. If you cannot leave your dog on a stay, you would need an assistant to hold the dog in place until released to do these exercises. I would strongly encourage you to work hard on a reliable stay command. It is useful in real life as well as in dog sports!

The first skill needed is for your beardedie to take rewards away from you, not from your hand. This can be done with a toy or food depending on what your partner likes best. Food can be put in a food bag. Most dogs will chase a thrown toy or food bag. Restrain your dog and throw the reward. Right after the reward lands, release the dog using whatever command you would like to use when training (I use "get it"). The dog should run to the reward. When he/she picks up the reward, praise and go to them and either play tug with the toy or give the dog some food from the bag. Generally, after a few reps of this type, the dog will understand that moving away from you results in something they really like! You can then transition to sending to a "dead" toy or food bag . . . i.e. one left on the ground. You leave your dog, put the toy or food bag some distance away, then go back and send the dog to the reward. You can also train your dog to send to a remote-control reward device like a “Mannersminder” (https://www.cleanrun.com/product/treat_and_train_remote_reward_dog_trainer/index.cfm). This device has the advantage that you can control whether or not the dog gets the reward from a distance, unlike a toy on the ground which is readily available. You should consider using one of these devices if your dog likes to self-reward.

Once your bearded understands distance rewards, you can begin obstacle training. The picture shows a setup I use to introduce both lateral distance from jumps and the concept of layering (having another obstacle in between the dog and handler while working). I take a tunnel and make it into a donut shape with no open ends. I then put a wing jump next to the “donut” with the wing touching the tunnel so it is not possible for the dog to get between the wing and the tunnel. I set my dog up on one side of the jump, place the reward on the other side of the jump, and, initially, stand on the landing side of the jump. I release my dog to jump and tell him “get it”. As the dog’s understanding of what is expected increases, I slowly move my position back until I can send him/her reliably over the jump to the reward from the take-off side of the jump from a lateral position. The next step is to introduce some space between the wing and the tunnel. Repeat the sequence as before, starting with you being on the landing side of the jump, and moving back to the take-off side until the dog moves confidently over the jump to the reward.

Truman and I produced a video demonstrating these steps and the kind of lateral distance that can be achieved. Apologies in advance . . . I’m better at agility than movie-making and it was windy the day we were filming! <https://vimeo.com/796641813>

HERDING NEWS

ROMH(X) AWARDS

SR 9.7.3

A ROMH (Register of Merit for Herding) certificate is awarded to any dam of two or more offspring that have earned three to nine AKC Herding Trial titles and to any sire of two or more offspring that have earned three to nine AKC Herding Trial titles.

A ROMHX (Register of Merit for Herding Excellent) certificate is awarded to any dam of three or more offspring that have earned ten or more AKC Herding Trial titles and to any sire of three or more offspring that have earned ten or more AKC Herding Trial titles.

AKC herding trial titles which qualify are HS (Herding Started), HI (Herding Intermediate), HX (Herding Excellent), and HC (Herding Champion). For both awards, each offspring may accrue credit for as many as three titles per trial level with each title on a different stock. 02/99-03, 180522, 220524, 220920

Special Note: In 2022 the number of progeny required for sires to achieve ROMH and ROMHX was decreased to that for dams. The number of progeny qualifying titles for both sires and dams was changed from one per level to three per level, each on different stock. The changes were made because retrospective analysis showed that many more dams than sires had received these awards since they began over 20 years ago and there was more competition on ducks.

Owners of sires or dams added with the new criteria will receive the award certificates if feasible.

 indicate non-BCCA member owned dogs/bitches to recognize contributions of those sires and dams to herding
