AGILITY NEWS

Libby Myers Buhite, Joanne Williamson

AKC has announced that beginning August 1, 2023 clubs can offer ISC classes (international style agility) at three levels: Novice, Intermediate and Advanced. This change is intended to encourage exhibitors to try international style agility. Although AKC will keep track of the scores, ISC will remain a non-regular or non-titling class; no titles can be earned in these events.

USING THE PRACTICE JUMP

Every AKC trial has at least one practice jump for each competition ring. Do you use it when you compete? If so, what do you do? Some hints...

If you have trouble with your beardedie holding a stay at the start line, the practice jump is a great place to work on this behavior. Leave your partner to wait and go to the other side of the jump. If he/she holds the stay, go back, release and reward. If I had a dog with a stay problem, the last rep I would do with them before going to the ring would be a go back, release and reward, NOT a release/reward forward.

If your beardedie has a problem with knocking bars (and the space/footing in the practice jump area allows it), try doing your warmups at a higher jump height. It's especially nice when the practice jump provided has the jump supports at 2-inch intervals. If possible, I always warm Truman up at 22", not 20".

Worried about how your beardedie will respond to some move you have planned? Run through it on the practice jump! My warm-up routine always includes rear crosses, wraps, and backsides. Although I usually do them on both sides, if there is place on course I am concerned about, I try to replicate what I have planned to do on the practice jump. If nothing else, it is a confidence booster for the handler when your partner nails the jump.
