LIFE ON THE FARM: BISSII THE COW DOG AND CADILLAC COWBOY

Laurie Lo

Sadly, the two Beef Steaks, Helen and Booger, had another sleepover on the farm. This time, it was in our Center Pasture. The Cadillac Cowboy returned with his horse trailer Monday afternoon. He parked it in a nearby small corral that opened up to the Center Pasture.

My husband Kurt, and the Cadillac Cowboy (CC) arranged wire cattle panels to make a chute to the trailer. The chute extended inside the Center Pasture, just past the fence gate.

I put Bissii on his 30 ft. lead and I donned my gloves. We went out to the pasture to move the Beef Steaks to the chute and into the trailer. Kurt and CC went into the pasture too. I told them to stay clear and be quiet. I forgot to tell them to stay still or move slowly.

The two men held a long white rope between them: an imitation electric wire. They next thing I knew, they were walking around the pasture, away from the cattle, with the rope bouncing along. The movement was so pronounced that even I noticed it. Bissii became worried. He didn't know whether to stay with me and move the stock or pay attention to the men with the white rope.

After a good half hour not getting very far with the Beef Steaks, I finally walked up to the men and asked them what they were doing. "Oh, we're helping you." "Well, you are bothering Bissii. He can't focus. Maybe you can take your rope and suspend it on the cattle panels so that Helen and Booger know where to go. Please don't sling it around."

Kurt and the Cadillac Cowboy did as they were told. Bissii and I proceeded to work the Beef Steaks very slowly towards and then through the chute. My husband quietly closed the gate behind the animals. Then the Cadillac Cowboy, who was with Kurt, rushed the Beef Steaks from behind. Helen looked around and jumped the cattle panel and then jumped into the ram paddock. Booger followed. Too much pressure too fast. Beef Steaks don't like that. Now we had the two Beef Steaks mixed in with the five rams. What a mess!

I decided to switch out dogs. I took Bissii back to the house and got Smokes, my chore dog. But Smokes is old and really did not want to work. Although we managed to put up the rams in a corner pen, Smokes could not get very far with the Beef Steaks.

The Cadillac Cowboy decided to call in reinforcements. Ten minutes or so later, three men and a bystander (one of the men's wives), came to the farm. While we managed to get the Beef Steaks back near the trailer, they would not go in. The poor animals were unhappy and were contemplating jumping back into the ram paddock.

One of the old guys remarked that the Beef Steaks were stressed and that we should leave them alone for the evening. He also suggested that in the morning, the Cadillac Cowboy bring some heavy duty self-standing tubular ring gating that can be interlocked. CC could make a chute (too high for Helen and Booger to jump) from the trailer to the Center Pasture. Then have Bissii and I move them into the chute and to the trailer. Everyone went home. It was 8 p.m. We had spent 3 1/2 hours and the Beef Steaks were still on the farm!

Tuesday morning, I was drinking my coffee and doing my internet Duolingo Czech lessons when my husband piped up "He's here!" "Who?" "The Cadillac Cowboy." In fact, he's got a chute all set up." I called Bissii to me. On the way out to the Center Pasture, I hooked Bissii up to his 30 ft. long line and put on my gloves. The men were in the pasture, but a good distance from the Beef Steaks. Bissii and I went to work. We drove them from the center of the pasture to the fence line. As we walked the fence line, loose stools erupted from Booger's back side. Booger was born without a tail, so the poop bubbled out like lava streaming from Kilahua.

Bissii and I continued to work. Slow and easy. At one point, Helen looked as if she was going to jump into the rams' pasture.

AGILITY NEWS

Libby Myers Buhite, Joanne Williamson

I'm still waiting for the final Invitational standings to be published. Look for them in the August Bagpipes. In the meantime, we hope you are planning to attend the 2023 National specialty agility trials in Michigan. Entries opened on July 1st and close on September 1st. The premium can be found on <https://bccca2023.com/>. Here is the information for the trial secretary.

We stopped and let her reconsider. Then she turned right for the chute, made a left turn into the chute, and slowly walked to the trailer. We waited and waited. Booger jumped into the trailer. The Cadillac Cowboy and Kurt closed the trailer door. Helen turned around and ran out of the chute, back to the Center Pasture.

Undeterred, Bissii and I went back to work. Helen was very worried. Worried enough that I saw her eyeing our short sheep fences, looking for an easy jump-over escape. But she also heard Booger yelling in the trailer. With Bissii's insistence, she decided to join Booger. Slowly she made her way to the chute and turned left. As she got to the trailer, Kurt and the Cadillac Cowboy opened the door. Helen hopped right in. The two men slammed the door shut.

Later in the afternoon, CC came back to pick up all his fencing equipment. He and Kurt loaded it onto a flatbed trailer. I was taking a nap. When I woke up, I looked out my bedroom window and saw the flatbed and the pickup truck in an upper pasture. The Cadillac Cowboy's rear wheel drive truck (he was not driving the Cadillac Escalade) was no match for the incline in our road. As CC was driving up the road, the rear end of the truck lifted off the ground and the flatbed trailer loaded with gating slid off the road.

Kurt got his EV Jeep out and managed to pull the trailer and truck off the field and back onto the road. We hope not to see the Cadillac Cowboy or his Beef Steaks for a while.

(Editor's note: Wonder how many fences Laurie and Kurt repaired by the time the beef steaks finally departed for home.)

TRAINING AT HOME: CONTINUING FOUNDATION WORK

Joanne Williamson • balgrae@ix.netcom.com

Allie just had her three-month birthday. Besides the constant job of working on her house manners and continuing to keep her well socialized, we've started puppy foundation work. I've chosen to shape some of these behaviors by clicker training. The "clicker" creates a noise which is used as the first or primary reinforcement for behavior that you would like to see repeated. The food or toy which follows is the secondary reinforcement. You create an association between the clicking sound and a reward (usually food to start) by clicking and then immediately feeding. It doesn't take long before your puppy is looking for the reward when he/she hears a click! This is called "loading the clicker". There are lots of excellent books available on clicker training if you want to learn more about the theory behind this method.

Early behavioral shaping or clicker training helps to encourage your puppy to think, to try to figure out how to please you. Generally, the first behavior you shape will be the default behavior the puppy will offer when you are trying to shape a new behavior. In the purest form of behavioral shaping, you wait to see the behavior you want and then click and treat. It can, however, take forever to get your puppy to give you something that can be rewarded. So, when trying to shape a new behavior, trainers often set up the situation so that the puppy will be more likely to offer the desired action. For example, if you want to shape sit, raising your hand with food in it above the puppy's head will encourage their butt to hit the ground. As soon as that happens you click and provide a food reward. At this stage of training, the behavior is NOT named. You wait until your puppy is sitting close to 100% of the time when they come to you and click and treat. Then you can attach the word "sit" to the behavior and fade out the constant rewards.

The first behavior I shaped with Allie was down. In the accompanying videos you will see that she often offers me down when she's trying to figure out what new behavior I want. I think the videos show she is making progress in learning how to learn. If you are new to this type of training, I would encourage you to video your own training sessions. You can critique your timing and document the progress you and your puppy are making on the road to becoming a team.

PERCH PIVOT <https://vimeo.com/842510914>

Teaching your puppy to keep his/her front feet stationary on a small "perch" and rotate around in a full circle by moving the rear legs, improves hind end awareness and agility. It can also be used to teach pivots for obedience and rally.

TOY AS REWARD <https://vimeo.com/842520840>

Tugging with your puppy is a good way to increase drive and, with some beardedies, works better than food. But your puppy needs to give up the toy when asked and you must build the understanding of it as a reward for behavior.

TEACHING A WRAP <https://vimeo.com/842531428>

Teaching your puppy to wrap around a cone on command will come in useful later in agility and rally training.

TARGET TRAINING <https://vimeo.com/842543767>

Being able to send your beardedie to a target has multiple applications in performance training. In this video, Allie had never seen this particular "target" before so she was a bit slower to pick up on what I wanted from her. I included this video because it shows how patient you need to be at times to achieve results.

I will try to document Allie's and my progress in the coming months. Until next time, happy training!
